Wall, the try-out night is just what they call it—a night of fun and amuse-ment. To see the acts get the hook by the case hands was a huge knoch alone. No less than three of the acts were given the hook. All you had to de if you didn't like the act was to all net the hook. It an instant the do if you didn't like the act was to yell get the book. In an Instant the act was hooked from the stage in front of you, and another act put on. It was a bill of continuous fun and a big time for those that attended. Some of the try-outs were very clever and received several encores. When an act was bad it only lasted a few seconds, for some one lost no time in calling for the hook. All the acts were on the alert for fear of gotting the hook.

Every Wednesday night in the future will be try-out naght at Poli's, when a double bill is given.

While there's breath in his body, no man can be beat.
Don't you know you've a chance to the very last heat?
Brace up there, and put some more speed in your feet.
If you try hard enough, you'll catch on to the way;
Chances are that tomorrow is your special day;
Serew your courage up tight, twist some still in your meat! our courage up tight, twist me grit in your meat!

Keep running.

—Herbert Kaufman.

Upon my course thro' life, I've found.
I've seen it everywhere;
Tho' money makes the world go round, It doesn't make it square.

O frost, be warm; dear snow, don't I have to wear; my outing suit.
